

During this month (June 2015) tax-deductible donations will help crowd fund this feature film. Please help get this story told. The film has already been shot - as it happened. Now the Bentley blockade story can be beautifully shown to the world and inspire other communities to stand up for their future...and our future! We share the planet. Now we have to tell the corporations.

How much can you spare to make this happen ?

It's about sharing the Bentley story with the world.

Whether you're a farmer, a student, a banker, a teacher or even a miner, chances are you spend time outdoors, enjoying fresh clean air and nature. Today, vast areas of Australia are covered by unconventional gas mining licences. To put it simply, this means the mining industry and its supporters would have as much as half of this country become a network of gasfields.

And no-one wants to live in a gasfield.

We are seeking your help to crowdfund the rough cut of The Bentley Effect, a feature film that documents the extraordinary events that led to the suspension of the mining companies license. This film will be an inspirational look at one of Australia's fastest growing social movements, as the community declared themselves protectors of the land and gasfield free.

This film will change how you think about community

The events at Bentley are now described as the 'Woodstock Moment' of our time. The film will be a good news story, a message of hope, and will show the world how a community can stand up to gasfield industrialisation.

We were there, cameras rolling, as the spectacle unfolded.

For those of you who experienced first-hand the transformative 3 months out at Camp Liberty, we hope to capture for you the magic and the highs and lows of that remarkable time. For those who supported from home, just heard about it in the news, or for the first time now, this film will be an insight into the unprecedented journey of the people who built the movement, those who answered the call and the spirit of the land.
