

2 months to go until the Global Climate Strike

Wow: it's just eight weeks to go until the next youth-led Global Climate Strike makes waves across the globe.

Momentum is swelling for the September 20 actions, which are already looking to be huge. Students, seniors, parents, teachers, union members, office workers – everyone, from every walk of life, is coming together to strike for climate action.

Here are just a few voices of people from all around the world who will be joining the Global Climate Strike.

Watch and share this Global Climate Strike video, sharing the voices of community leaders from around the world.

The climate crisis is an emergency. We have to act like it and show politicians how many people worldwide are stepping up and refusing to sit on the sidelines.

That's why on September 20, three days out from the UN's Emergency Climate Summit, millions of us will walk out of our homes and workplaces to join young people in the streets for #ClimateStrike. Together, we will demand an end to the age of fossil fuels and urgent action to avoid climate breakdown.

Time to take the next steps:

- RSVP for a #ClimateStrike event
- If there isn't an event happening near you already, organise a #ClimateStrike event in your community

It's incredible watching this video, and hearing the voices of people across the globe organising to take action on September 20. It reminds me that together we can end the age of dirty fossil fuels and ensure a rapid clean energy transition – with equity and justice at its heart.

The world is on our side.

In solidarity for the climate,

Jacynta, for the 350 Australia team